Numerous meetings are scheduled for the week among both whites and negroes. Friday evening at 8 o'clock will be the biggest occasion of all. At that time the "set-up" or inapirational meeting for the campaign, at which all workers are expected to be present, will be held. Before Monday, Nov. 11. everything will be in readiness for the actual work of securing the money.

The Sheiby county campaign committee was scheduled to meet at the directors room of the Union and Planters Bank and Trust company at 11 o'clock Monday morning and again at 7:30 in the evening to complete the 20 teams of 15 workers each, ten women and five men.

Captains of women workers and members of the women's teams were to have met at the Young Women's club at 10:20 Monday morning where they were to hear an address by Borden Burr, noted inwyer of Birmingham, Ala, who spent months on the battle front in France in the service of the Y. M. C. A. and who delivered four addresses in Memphis Sunday before the Character Builder class at Madison Heights church, at the Second Prospetian church, at the Second Prospetian church, at the Goodwyn Institue and at St. John's Methodist church. "Don't let prospects of early cessation of hostilities in Europe cause you to slacken your efforts in behalf of or your contributions to the united war work campaign to be launched here and elsewhere throughout the United States Nov. 11, because American soldlers in France will need the ministrations and tender care of the Y. M. C. A. and other welfare organizations far more during the one or two years following ending of the war than now while they are actually engaged in fighting," was the ringing message he brought to Memphians.

"While American boys are actually righting," he said, "they not only have serious business before them but they know this and they are busy preparing themselves for the end that may come at any moment. But when the war is over and all restraint is removed they will have little more than police duty and drilling to do and temptation will come. France regards them as no least than her deliverers and will literally take down the bars' to them. They are better, cleaner men today than when, as boys, they were sent across the Atlantic. And it is up to the sevent welfare organizations to see that, after they accomplish their mission, they come back as good and as clean, mornally and physically, as they are now."

Mr. Burr also told of the reduction of illiteracy 33 per cent among American soldiers by educational work still to be done in their behalf by these organizations and emphasized t cover a wide range.

Other high lights in his address were:

"The personnel of the men in charge of activities of the Y. M. C. A. and the other welfare organizations in France is higher than the personnel of any other organization in the world."

"The Salvation Army is one of the oldest of these organizations and is, in point of numbers, perhaps one of the smallest: but in point of service it is one of the most active and one of the smallest: but in point of service it is one of the most active and one of the most successful, getting from every dellar spent as much as, or more than any of the other six."

"I am enloying the best of health and my spirits are high." He read these words from a letter to his parents taken from the body of an unidentified private who fell at Chateau Thierry, and then declared:

"This typifies the spirit and the morale of the American boys, a morale that is so high that, if the authorities in the United States nad shown willingness to negotiate an inconclusive peace, those on the fighting line in France would have mutinied.

"The natural character and the splendid manhood of these boys is responsible, in a measure, for their high morale, but the welfare organizations that carry the home touch and that give them every assurance that the felks back home are not only with them, but are proving this fact by putting up their money, have played a tremendous part in bringing about the wonderful spirit, the fine morale, the unquenchable will to victory they are displaying every day.

"Among the welfare organizations it

"Among the welfare organizations it is not a question of "denomination," but of 'Christianity." It is not a matter of 'proselyting,' but of 'rendering the largest possible service to men."
